

FEDERATION OF STUDENTS
UNIVERSITY OF WATERLOO

News Release

For immediate release: Sept 10, 1996

Activists To Meet at UW to Share Ideas and Strategies.

Waterloo, Ontario - Activists in the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgendered communities will come together September 28 and 29 at the University of Waterloo to learn what conference organizers term "practical skills for visionary leaders".

"The conference is intended to bring activists of all kinds together to share ideas, and to learn new strategies for managing change," says Heather Calder, coordinator of the Student Issues Resource Centre. Calder, of the Federation of Students office, is co-hosting the conference in association with the Gay and Lesbian Liberation of Waterloo (GLLOW).

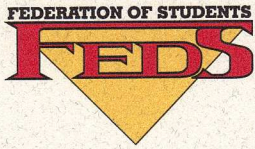

GLLOW has been active in the KW-Cambridge Community for more than 25 years, and its coordinators felt that it was time to bring like-minded individuals together to talk about self-care and personal change as well as the struggle for systemic and social change. The conference will be facilitated by Inside/Out, an organization from London offering educational opportunities for personal and professional growth. Says Leslie Davis, of Inside/Out: "My focus has been to help people look inside themselves to explore how the outside world has determined their inner truth." The conference will also contain information and exercises to develop media literacy, provided by full-time journalist Janet Money.

In order to keep it accessible for organizations the registration fee has been set at $10 per person. "We have invited over one hundred organizations from all over Ontario to attend, and judging from the phone calls I have received, many more have heard about the conference," says Calder of the response. To receive more information or to register by phone, please contact Heather Calder at 519-888-4567, ext 6331.

For more information, please contact:

Heather Calder
Coordinator, Student Issues Resource Centre
University of Waterloo Federation of Students
(519)888-4042

Waterloo Chronicle
Reggie's Cable.
KW Record.
CKWR.
Cambridge Times.

News Release

For immediate release: Sept 10, 1996

Activists To Meet at UW to Share Ideas and Strategies.

Waterloo, Ontario - Activists in the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgendered communities will come together September 28 and 29 at the University of Waterloo to learn what conference organizers term "practical skills for visionary leaders".

"The conference is intended to bring activists of all kinds together to share ideas, and to learn new strategies for managing change," says Heather Calder, coordinator of the Student Issues Resource Centre. Calder, of the Federation of Students office, is co-hosting the conference in association with the Gay and Lesbian Liberation of Waterloo (GLLOW).

GLLOW has been active in the KW-Cambridge Community for more than 25 years, and its coordinators felt that it was time to bring like-minded individuals together to talk about self-care and personal change as well as the struggle for systemic and social change. The conference will be facilitated by Inside/Out, an organization from London offering educational opportunities for personal and professional growth. Says Leslie Davis, of Inside/Out: "My focus has been to help people look inside themselves to explore how the outside world has determined their inner truth." The conference will also contain information and exercises to develop media literacy, provided by full-time journalist Janet Money.

In order to keep it accessible for organizations the registration fee has been set at $10 per person. "We have invited over one hundred organizations from all over Ontario to attend, and judging from the phone calls I have received, many more have heard about the conference," says Calder of the response. To receive more information or to register by phone, please contact Heather Calder at 519-888-4567, ext 6331.

For more information, please contact:

Heather Calder
Coordinator, Student Issues Resource Centre
University of Waterloo Federation of Students
(519)888-4042

